

ANNOUNCING A NEW SERIES: CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS

PALGRAVE STUDIES IN DIGITAL INEQUALITIES

Calling all Digital Divide Scholars!

Your work has a new home in Palgrave Studies in Digital Inequalities: we are seeking monographs and edited volumes that speak to any aspect of digital inequality, digital divides, and digital inclusion writ large.

ABOUT THE SERIES

We welcome monographs and edited volumes that are empirical, theoretical, agenda-setting, and/or policy driven that explore any aspect of inequality, marginalization, inclusion, and/or positive change in the digital world. The series seeks scholars studying both emergent and established forms of inequality. Potential themes include but are not limited to digital inequalities in relation to AI, algorithms, misinformation, digital labor, platform economy, cybersafety, cybercrime, gaming, big data, the digital public sphere, economic class, gender, sexuality, race and ethnicity, aging, disability, healthcare, education, rural residency, networks, public policy, etc.

SERIES EDITORS

Massimo Ragnedda, Senior Lecturer in Mass Communication at Northumbria University, Newcastle, UK, and Visiting Professor at the Faculty of Journalism, Lomonosov Moscow State University, Russia.

Laura Robinson, Associate Professor in the Department of Sociology at Santa Clara University, USA, and Faculty Associate at the Harvard Berkman Klein Center for Internet & Society.
